

Remote Ready Equipping your Leaders & Teams to keep momentum and productivity during disruption

With many of you moving to remote working, there are a number of consistent themes that are popping up when we've been chatting to you the last few days.

One we wanted to address right off the bat is how to do remote working right, as this can help reduce, appease and minimise the stress of a quick change to working from home.

Visit us here for tips on how to transition your staff to working from home arrangements quickly, but also see below a range of Webinars our Partners at Agile 11 are working on to equip you to be Remote First enablers!

With the recent developments about the COVID-19 pandemic, we, at The Agile Eleven, continue to pursue our purpose of making work better for everyone and focusing on keeping connected with clients and our team online.

We believe that connection is what will get us through these uncertain times. Connecting by minimising the spread of the COVID-19 virus, supporting friends, neighbours and family who are self-isolating (why not pick up their groceries and leave at their doorstep?), by supporting local businesses and, of course, by keeping connected with co-workers virtually.

With most organisations quickly shifting into a virtual workforce, we are now offering Remote-Ready, a free webinar series to support Australians become remote-ready. Starting on March 19th at 9am (AEDT) we will be covering the following topics in sharp 30-minute webinars:

- Day 1 March 19th: Tools & Techniques
- Day 2 March 20th: Keep work moving
- Day 3 March 23rd: Values & Culture
- Day 4 March 24th: Staying connected
- Day 5. March 25th: Leading virtually

Get the popcorn ready, call your friends and co-workers, sign up and save the date Thursday, March 19th at 9am (AEDT).
